

Lesson 9: You Win in Life with People

Jimmy Delaney

In working with Pat, you know, there was Coach Summit, and then there was Pat. And for some of us, we were lucky to see both of those and how they wove into each other.

And the one thing that it's still, even now as a unit head and here at the athletic department kind of coming up, the phrase, you win in life with people. And so, as I think about all of the Definite Dozen and the things we've talked about:

- Communicate
- Leadership
- Loyalty

All of that, it really speaks to you win in life with people. And Pat not only said it, you saw her do it every day and you felt it as someone that was in that circle.

And so whether it was, you know, driving her to an appearance or trying to take a game or game atmosphere to another level or planning a championship celebration, whatever it might have been, Pat was always as invested in you as you were invested in what was going on.

And so, I think still to this day, professionally, personally, everything, like when you talk about winning in life with people, that truly is it.
